THE RING

Built in 1783, The Ring arena was originally called the Surrey Chapel, until the strange shaped building was bought by a former British Lightweight champion Dick Burge and his wife Bella in 1910. They named it simply 'The Ring' and it would become the first indoor boxing ring for the working classes.

During a daylight raid on 25th October 1940 a huge bomb landed on Blackfriars Road and seriously damaged The Ring and another raid in 1941 almost completely destroyed it, it was eventually demolished. The office building opposite which now stands on the site if the original ring is named Palestra which means a place for training and wrestling practice in Greek!
